BERGER SINGERMAN
FLORIDA'S BUSINESS LAW FIRM

HRO TODAY, "MAINTAINING HEALTH, MINIMIZING RISK"

A dive into OSHA requirements for employee safety as workplaces open.

June 8, 2020

By: Andrew B. Zelman

HRO Today

View Full Article

"For employers eager to jump-start their businesses while ensuring a healthy workforce and minimizing liability from exposed employees, compliance with the ever-changing laws and guidance is essential. This will mainly come from HR. In the absence of a mutual agreement by both the organization and employees to follow company policies aimed at preventing the spread of COVID-19, a safe workplace upon reopening may not be feasible."

Related Practices

Labor & Employment

Related Practice Teams

Dispute Resolution

Related Team Member(s)

Andrew B. Zelman

Topics

Labor & Employment

COVID-19