BERGER SINGERMAN
FLORIDA'S BUSINESS LAW FIRM

LAW360 "LAW STUDENTS OVERCOME HURDLES DURING COVID-19 PANDEMIC"

Two Berger Singerman summer associates discuss their experience working remotely during the most pivotal summer of their early legal careers.

August 17, 2020

Law360

View Full Article

In the legal world, it is no secret that landing a summer associate position after your second year of law school is crucial. Every year, countless students across the country compete for a handful of summer clerkship positions in the hopes of converting them into post-graduate opportunities. However, the economic impact of COVID-19 raised the stakes even further, with many law firms suspending their summer intern or associate programs, and the job market narrowing for the foreseeable future.

Related Team Member(s)

Hunter Boyett

Brittany Husk

Topics

Summer Associates

COVID-19